Bold Inventor: Oscar "Moosie" Williamson

This month's Bold Inventor Stories features inventor Oscar Williamson, the proud inventor of Pak-Jak, a one-of-a kind jacket design protected by Bold Patents. Bold Patents worked with Oscar to make the process simple and transparent, so that he felt comfortable every step of the way, "It went pretty smoothly, I'm not going to lie, it was a good experience."

~ Oscar

Bold Attorney: Reed Risenmay

Reed Risenmay, an experienced Bold Patents Agent, worked with Oscar from Pak-Jak to get his unique jacket design patented. He worked closely with Oscar throughout every step of the patent process, and through his legal expertise and guidance, helped Oscar to bring his revolutionary jacket design to market.

The attorneys at Bold Patents are seasoned professionals in patent law and have helped thousands of people turn their big ideas into something more, including Oscar Williamson from Pak-Jak.

Bold Patents helped Oscar to protect his unique jacket designed for outdoor lovers everywhere. Being an avid nature lover, Oscar spends a lot of time outdoors and saw a need for a one-of-a-kind jacket with a removable, zip-off back. For any of you who have ever hiked with a backpack, you know that when you get moving, you can heat up quickly and start to sweat. In cold weather situations, this can prove to be tricky. As your perspiration begins to cool, it brings down your body temperature, making it hard to find a comfortable homeostasis. Say goodbye to the days of struggling to find the perfect jacket, and say hello to the unique design of Pak-Jak.

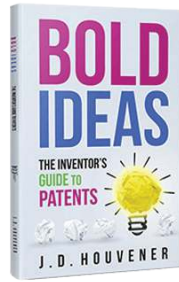

Our team helped Oscar to protect a design for the removable back feature, as well as the shoulder clips, designed to secure the front of the jacket to any backpack, helping making Pak-Jak an easy to use, user friendly design. With help from Bold Patents, Oscar is launching his new business, and Pak-Jak is now available on his online store. To Help Oscar fund his new business, visit his Pak-Jak Kickstarter page.
